

ABSTRACT

A space-based power system. The system maintains proper positioning and alignment of system components without using connecting structures. Power system 5 elements are launched into orbit, and the free-floating power system elements are maintained in proper relative alignment, e.g., position, orientation, and shape, using a control system.